Press release, 2 March 2020

Cinema audience to meet international and Swedish filmmakers at Tempo Documentary Festival which starts today

Danes Louise Detlefsen, Louise Unmack Kjeldsen and Eva Mulvad are three of the international directors who are attending this year's Tempo Documentary Festival. They are behind documentaries with widely different themes such as body positivity (Fat Front) and having to flee their country in the name of love (Love Child).

In addition to these, directors and producers from all corners of the world will visit Stockholm during the festival week, which takes place from today and 8 March. They will all attend the screenings of their films and are also available for interviews. Below is a list of the international guests, the dates they are here and a link to more information about each film. The majority of the directors of the Swedish films will also attend the festival for talks after the screenings. The 21st edition of the Tempo Documentary Festival will take place on March 2 - 8, 2020. Tempo Documentary Festival is the largest festival of its kind in Sweden. Founded in 1998, Tempo has since the beginning presented creative documentaries from all over the world, which would otherwise not reach the Swedish audience. Tempo has established a unique forum for the presentation of documentary work across traditional boundaries – film, radio, photography and transmedia as well as more experimental forms of expression. Between festivals, a number of different events are arranged with a documentary focus, such as seminars, debates, photo exhibitions, together with screenings and workshops for young people. The festival and other associated events are arranged and developed by the non-profit organisation
